"There's an illusion being created that all the world's knowledge is on the Web, but we haven't begun to glimpse what is out there in local archives and libraries. Material that is not digitized risks being neglected as it would not have been in the past, virtually lost to the great majority of potential users."

AFRICANA STUDIES COLLECTIONS

Updated May 2009

Africa, 1794-1844, British Colonial Office Files 2 and 392

Researchers of African history and European imperialism will find in The Exploration and Colonization of Africa a gold mine of data, as will anthropologists who wish to study the cultural history of the continent. These two famous Colonial Office collections, Files 2 and 392, provide a firsthand look at the motives behind huge investments in the exploration, colonization and economic exploitation of Africa.

Gerald R. Ford and Foreign Affairs

Part 1: National Security Advisor's Files

Section 4: Presidential Country Files for Africa

These Presidential Country Files relate to U.S. relations with existing and emerging countries in Africa and address regional concerns as well as issues specific to individual countries. Materials in the first five folders are filed under "Africa," and the remainder of the collection is arranged by name of country.

Memoranda, briefing papers and comparable materials created by the National Security Adviser, National Security Council staff and State Department officials, and telegrams exchanged between the State Department and U.S. embassies are contained in these files. The prevalent topics in this collection are the move to independence and establishment of new government in many countries, especially Angola, and the effort to bring about majority rule in Southern Africa. Just about every country had an interest or involvement in the events taking place in Angola, Mozambique, Rhodesia/Zimbabwe, South Africa, and Namibia. Materials relating to these countries are filed throughout the collection. Materials in the folders for Zaire and Zambia are particularly relevant for research on these two main topics. In addition to the relationship between the U.S. and individual countries, the materials also show U.S. interaction with the former colonial powers and the role of the Organization of African Unity.

International Population Census Publications

This valuable collection is based on The International Population Census Bibliography and the: Revision and Update, 1946-1977 as supplemented by new acquisitions updates and online catalogue postings.

This is a vital resource for the study of global census information from the 16th century to the 1980s. Using this easily accessible tool, researchers can conduct comparative studies on social classes, the rural exodus, urbanization and global Diasporas, according to criteria such as gender and age. From this data, users can study the changes and developments within a nation's occupational, educational and socio-economic structure. Rare materials— taken from censuses as far back as the 1500s—are also included, and in many cases, are reproduced from the only editions in existence.

Researchers in demographic and population studies will find this fully indexed resource invaluable. Researchers in sociology, political science, history, geography and anthropology will be able to locate critical statistical information easily and efficiently. In addition, businesses, government and social agencies and town planning departments will find this collection useful for urban planning.

The collection is divided into three broad time periods: pre-1945, 1945-1967, and post-1967. The latter period includes information from the 1990s and is accompanied by detailed reel guides. Primary Source Media offers libraries the opportunity to supplement their existing holdings of the International Population Census through the acquisition of discrete geographic and/or historical segments of this acclaimed collection.

The Slave Trade, 1858-1892: British Foreign Office: File 541, Confidential Print Series

This publication is a rich source on international slave trade in the 19th century and on the political, cultural and economic relations that England had with other countries. The collection is invaluable for historians studying the economic interdependence among many areas, including the United States, the Spice Islands, South Africa, India, African states and Middle Eastern states. The slave trade was abolished in 1807 throughout the British Empire, and in 1833 the owning of slaves was abolished. As masters of the seas, English vessels scoured the Atlantic, looking for ships that might contain illegal human cargo.

Slave Trade Papers

Sir Thomas Fowell-Buxton was heir to William Wilberforce as leader of the anti-slavery moment in Great Britain. His papers provide a unique insight into the development of the Victorian social conscience and the worldwide significance of the great anti-slavery campaign. This source supplies fundamental material for any examination of the international phenomenon of slavery in the 18th and 19th centuries, the colonization and Christianization of Africa and the Empire, and the parliamentary and extra-parliamentary history of the abolitionist movement. The Calendar of the Papers of Sir Thomas Fowell-Burton, 1786-1845 by Patricia M. Pugh serves as a guide to this collection and is also reproduced on the first reel.

Studies in Global Crises

The International AIDS/HIV Crisis

This microfilm collection documents the U.S. and worldwide response to the threat posed by HIV/AIDS. The research behind the studies, reports, and analyses represents an exhaustive review of the facts, causes, and political, social, and economic implications of a phenomenon that threatens every region of the world.

The International HIV/AIDS Crisis assembles research studies that analyze the goals and strategies of fighting this worldwide epidemic. These studies, reports, and analyses were conducted by governmental agencies, private organizations under contract with the Federal government, and international organizations—including the Centers for Disease Control; World Health Organization; U.S. Agency for International Development; Johns Hopkins University; Macro, International; and National Institutes of Health. They represent the most rigorous and authoritative research on HIV/AIDS. The value of these materials is both immediate and historical. They provide up-to-date information on the global crisis, while documenting the manner in which HIV/AIDS has spread, efforts to control
