IMMIGRATION AND REFUGEE STUDIES COLLECTIONS

FALL 2011

American Home Missionary Society Papers, 1816-1894

The American Home Missionary Society was formed in 1826 by the Congregational, Presbyterian, Dutch Reformed, and Associate Reformed Churches with the purpose of financially assisting congregations on the American frontier until they could become self-sufficient. Correspondence from these missionaries provides information on slavery, the economic and social conditions of the day, European immigrants, and denominationalism.

Series I: Incoming Correspondence, 1816-1893

This is the largest portion of the collection and is divided into geographical sub-series by state, then chronologically by year and alphabetically within the year by author.

New England.	34 reels.
Middle Atlantic.	54 reels.
Southern & Border.	20 reels.
Old Northwest.	135 reels.
Plains and Rockies.	51 reels.
Pacific.	10 reels.
Canada & Foreign.	2 reels.

Series 1: 277 reels.

Series II, Outgoing Correspondence, 1826-1894

Series II is arranged chronologically by fiscal year and by month and day within the fiscal year. An alphabetical index of correspondents is provided at the beginning of each year's file.

93 reels.

Series III, Administrative Material, 1821-1893

Included in this series are reports, memoranda, executive committee resolutions, financial information, and some sermons.

1 reel.

Series IV, Annual Reports, 1826-1936

These reports contain information about the Society, its functions and finances.

4 reels.

Series V, The Home Missionary, 1828-1909

The Society's monthly magazine includes articles about Society meetings, social activities, and reports from missionaries and agents.

American Fund for Public Service Records, 1922-1941

The American Fund for Public Service gave nearly two million dollars to many left-wing organizations, including civil liberties and minority rights groups, plus labor organizations and legal defense funds. Nearly every progressive group active between 1922 and 1941 is represented, including the NAACP, ACLU, and the American Birth Control League. The grant and loan application files account for 70% of this collection. The files are divided into two series: Applicants Accepted and Applicants Refused; and further divided into four time periods: 1922-1927, 1928-1933, 1934-1938, and 1939-1941. This well-organized and easy-to-use collection will appeal to researchers in many disciplines.

Boston Overseers of the Poor Records, 1733-1925

Established by a colonial act in 1692, the Boston Overseers of the Poor provided relief in the form of food, fuel, medicines, and sometimes money, to "deserving" persons, provided that they were "settled" in Boston. The Overseers also provided relief at the expense of towns where needy people resided until the town took charge of them and also provided relief to non-state residents for short periods until they were removed to State Almshouses.

The Administrative Records cover the period 1738-1916 and contain financial records, warning out books, memoranda, letterbooks, correspondence, casebooks, and lists of persons receiving various types of charity.

The Almshouse Records, which cover the period 1735-1911, include admissions and discharge registers, lists of inmates, death records, indenture records, and memoranda.

Denison House Records, 1891-1961

Founded in 1892 in Boston, Massachusetts, Denison House was created by affluent women who sought a “democracy” between the leisure class and the working class. The house served primarily as an outreach program center and worked to engage the neighborhood in many activities: classes in home nursing, English literature, and dancing; clubs and sports for boys and girls; and relief programs, such as a milk station and coal distribution.

Three series comprise this important collection:

- History—Scrapbooks, radio show transcripts, and papers
- Administrative—Board of Directors and Executive Committee minutes and reports, annual meeting documents, miscellaneous committee reports, some financial records. In chronological order.
- Program—Documents Denison House activities and services. Consists of reports by College Settlement Association, resident workers, committee members, and others about daily activities and programs. Also includes scrapbooks of mostly printed material. Each segment is chronological.

Emigrant Savings Bank Records, 1841-1945

The Emigrant Savings Bank was established in New York City in 1850 by the Irish Emigrant Society, which was founded for the protection of immigrants from Ireland. The bank offered a safe place to keep the immigrants’ money and a way to send money home to destitute relatives. This collection consists of selected records of the bank, particularly records pertaining to the Irish Emigrant Society, and data about the bank’s depositors and borrowers. Society and bank records document the social history of Irish immigrants on either side of the Atlantic. Bank records contain information about deposit accounts, real estate, buildings and investments.

Ethnic Newspapers from the Balch Institute for Ethnic Studies

For two decades, the Balch Institute for Ethnic Studies has been collecting, preserving and interpreting materials reflecting America’s ethnic diversity. Focusing on ethnic groups in America, it endeavors to document and interpret all of the country’s racial and ethnic groups. The library’s microform collection represents important resources in understanding the still-emerging story of America’s multicultural heritage.

FBI File on Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers

This FBI file reveals details regarding the investigation of labor organizer Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers as a subversive group. Chavez, a former migrant worker, was founder and director of the group. In 1965, Chavez and the National Farm Workers Association (known later as the United Farm Workers) led a strike of California grape-pickers for higher wages. The strike went on for five years, attracting the nation's attention. Senator Robert F. Kennedy, who supported Chavez in his struggle for the rights of farm workers, called Chavez "one of the heroic figures of our time." Chavez continued to fight for the rights of migrant workers in the 1970s and 1980s. The FBI began investigating Chavez and the farm workers in 1965 under the suspicion that he and individual workers had communist or subversive affiliations. The records included here are roughly chronological in organization. This collection is an invaluable resource for ethnic studies, particularly Mexican/Chicano studies.

The Fiorello H. La Guardia Papers, 1917–1945

Fiorello La Guardia (1882–1947) worked his way up in New York politics to become one of the city's most effective mayors and one of the most colorful public figures of the Depression. Reproduced in this publication is the New York Public Library's extensive collection of La Guardia papers, which primarily document his years as a congressman and as mayor. This resource provides important information on immigration and naturalization during La Guardia's long political career. He was driven into the Republican party by the corruption of Tammany Hall. During his service in the U.S. House of Representatives, La Guardia veered away from the Republican Party's opposition to Progressive policies: he supported Robert M. La Follette for president in 1924 and endorsed the Socialist Norman Thomas for mayor of New York. He failed to be reelected to Congress in 1932; the following year, however, he won the mayoral election on an anti-Tammany fusion slate. He would serve three terms as mayor (1933–1945), becoming the first reform mayor in the city's history to succeed himself.

Immigrant in America

Immigrant culture and experience in America have become objects of popular interest in recent years. While many ethnic groups are beginning to acknowledge their various native origins, Americans have developed activities and events honoring the achievements and contributions of their ancestors. However, the phenomenon of immigration has provided a difficult subject of study, owing in part to a serious lack of source material.

Spanning the years between 1789 and 1929, Immigrant in America covers two major waves of immigration. In 1820, 10 million people, more than 90% of them from western and northern Europe, entered the country. Among them were the Germans, English, Welsh, Scots, Scotch-Irish, British and Irish, as well as people from Norway, Sweden and France. The second wave, the peak of immigration, took place during the 1880s, ushering in arrivals from eastern and southern Europe: 27 million Poles, Greeks, Italians, Croatians, Ukrainians, Hungarians and Russian Jews. The implementation of the National Origins Act of 1924 effectively ended immigration by 1929.

Adjustment and adaptation were a constant problem for immigrants. Looked upon with suspicion and suffering from a good deal of anti-immigrant sentiment, they were continually subjected to efforts to Americanize them. Many found themselves scapegoats, blamed for social and economic difficulties. To prevent persecution and harassment, many families denied their origins. Only recently have descendants of immigrants elected to assert their backgrounds, calling attention to the contributions of their ancestors. Their struggle to assimilate, despite the threat of ostracism and bigotry, is reflected in this collection.

Not until the New York Public Library began to collect immigrant literature was any serious, systematic effort made to preserve the history of the immigrant. Immigrant colleges, agencies and historical societies gave information that helped piece together a fragmented and elusive history. Under the guidance of A. William Hoglund, Professor of History at the University of Connecticut and Trustee of the Balch Institute for Ethnic Studies, the Immigrant in America draws from several major archives, including the New York Public Library collection, to provide scholars with easy access to study sources.

Jewish People from Holocaust to Nationhood: Archives of the Central British Fund for World Jewish Relief, 1933-1960

These archives reveal the manner in which the Central British Fund (CBF), a philanthropic organization supported by the Anglo-Jewish community, raised large sums of money, organized and coordinated activities to secure refugees from Nazi Germany and helped restore to them their dignity and a measure of social and economic viability. The CBF was founded in 1933 by a group of Anglo-Jewish communal leaders in direct response to the appointment of Adolf Hitler as Chancellor of Germany and his implementation of anti-Semitic policies. It gathered information on the developing crisis, put pressure on governments and Jewish organizations and played a leading role in rescuing Jews before and during the war. As rare primary material, this archive will be of immense value to any scholar studying the events of the Holocaust, its aftermath and the effects on Jewish people worldwide.

The Papers of Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver

Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, born Abraham Silver, was a national and international leader of the Zionist movement, and played a key role in events leading to the proclamation of the State of Israel. He spoke out early against Adolf Hitler. As a founder of the League for Human Rights against Naziism (1933) and as president of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League to Champion Human Rights (1938), he urged a nationwide boycott of German-made goods.

Series I: General Correspondence, 1914-1969

This series consists of correspondence, minutes, financial statements, publications, reports, and confidential notes Rabbi Silver's leadership roles are documented in what were probably the most important of the Zionist organizations—the American Zionist Emergency Council (AZEC), and its successor, the American Zionist Council.

Subseries A: Alphabetical. Reels 1-88. 88 reels.

Subseries B: Chronological. Reels 88-99. 12 reels.

Series II: Harold P. Manson File, 1932-1949

Named for the AZEC Director of Information, the Harold P. Manson file contains minutes, correspondence, memoranda, reports and bulletins, press releases, publications, and personal notes related to the establishment of the State of Israel.

Reels 100-109. 10 reels.

Series III: Personal Correspondence, 1914-1964

Temple business and Rabbi Silver's duties as a rabbi account for a large percentage of the correspondence in Series 3.

Reels 110-144. 35 reels.

Series IV: Sermons, 1915-1963

Numerous final typed copies of Sunday morning sermons prepared by the Rabbi Silver's secretary comprise this series. They are important not only because they reflect Rabbi Silver's views, but also as commentary on current events and the times in which he lived.

Reels 145-170. 26 reels.

Series V: Writings, 1909-1963

This series consists of printed sermons; journal, magazine, and newspaper articles; manuscript editions and printed versions of speeches; printed programs; diaries and journals of his travels; poetry; and miscellaneous unpublished manuscripts and handwritten notes.

Reels 171-187. 42 reels.

Series VI: Speaking Engagements, 1917-1963

Included is correspondence, publicity concerning his engagements, and programs from the engagements.

Reels 188-210. 23 reels.

Series VII: Personal Miscellaneous, 1908-1989

This series is comprised mostly of newspapers and magazine clippings in English, Yiddish, and Hebrew, as well as other languages, from both national and international publications. The guide is reproduced on the first roll of film.

Subseries A: Biographical. Reels 211-212. 2 reels.

Subseries B: Appointment Books. Reels 212-215. 4 reels.

Reports of the Immigrant Commission, 1907-1910

This microfilm publication reproduces 41 bound volumes of reports by the U.S. Immigration Commission, analyzing the heavy waves of immigration to America early in the 20th century and their effects on the country. These reports provide detailed information on the various nationalities of immigrants — including the Japanese — and on how they managed to fit into U.S. society. It covers a wide variety of topics: how immigrants affected U.S. industries, cities, and schools; steerage conditions; crime among immigrant groups; immigrant banks; prostitution; charity groups. Also examined are such controversial subjects as “changes in bodily form of descendants of immigrants” and “fecundity of immigrant women.”

Japanese Relocation Camp and Assembly Center Newspapers (aka Japanese Camp Newspapers)

U.S. government was besieged with demands that Japanese-Americans be removed from "sensitive areas" and incarcerated in camps. By April 1942, over 100,000 Japanese were housed in what came to be known as relocation centers, run by the War Relocation Authority. Publications from all ten relocation camps and the two assembly centers are included in this microfilm publication. These camp newspapers record the concerns and day-to-day life of the interned Japanese-Americans. Although articles frequently appear in Japanese, most of the papers are in English or in dual text. Many of the fifty titles constituting this collection are complete or substantially complete. In this publication, the camp papers are arranged first by location and then chronologically. A listing of titles follows; for a roll breakdown, please call our toll-free number: 800-772-8937.
