INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS AND DIPLOMACY STUDIES COLLECTIONS

Updated May 2009

The Correspondence and Speeches Series of the Personal Papers of John Foster Dulles (1888-1959)

This collection documenting the life and work of one of the 20th-century's most influential diplomats provides a view of pivotal international events that cannot be found anywhere else. John Foster Dulles' contributions as a negotiator, policymaker and economic adviser are illuminated in this important collection. The Princeton holdings that relate to Dulles's efforts as secretary of state under President Eisenhower shed invaluable light on the official files of the U.S. Department of State.

Dean Gooderham Acheson Papers

The Dean Gooderham Acheson Papers is a rich source of information on the policies, thoughts and accomplishments of the secretary of state who guided American foreign policy from 1948-1953. The papers, which span the period 1898-1978, are especially full for the period after Acheson left public office in 1953 until his death in 1971.

Declassified Documents Reference System

This collection provides first-hand accounts of the critical policies and events of the Cold War era, including Cabinet meeting minutes, National Security Council policy statements, CIA intelligence studies, presidential conferences, State Department political analyses and Joint Chiefs' papers, forming a reliable record of U.S. relations with, and perceptions of, the world, unparalleled in any unclassified source. DDRS is available from 1974 to the present and can be purchased on a subscription basis together with backfiles. The complete DDRS backfile contains more than 95,000 documents, constituting more than 595,000 pages of material. Each annual subscription to the collection includes the complete documents issued in six installments. Also available is the Retrospective Collection (pre-1975), containing more than 6,000 documents, constituting more than 50,000 pages, released for the first time by government agencies after the passage of the Freedom of Information Act Amendment. Abstracts and indexes of the annual collections are issued six times a year, in one volume per installment. Subject indexes are also compiled in a cumulative index. Abstracts are arranged according to issuing agency and consist of a summary of each document and important bibliographic information such as date of issue, original classification, pagination and date of declassification. Entries appear under LC-compatible headings for persons, countries, conflicts, technical subjects and the like. Entry numbers lead the researcher from the index to the abstracts or directly to the microfiche, which are organized in the same order as the abstracts. The Retrospective Collection comprises two hardbound abstracts volumes and a hardbound subject index.

The Diaries of Henry Lewis Stimson, 1909-1945

The Henry Lewis Stimson diaries, spanning the years 1909-1945, cover a long public career and offer scholars an invaluable historical source. Stimson began keeping the diaries in 1909 when he was 42. Characteristically, he made a conscious decision at that time to keep a full record of his public life, and the diary was maintained until to his last day in public office on Sept. 21, 1945.

The Ford Administration and Human Rights

Part 1: White House Central Files

President Ford's efforts to end racial discrimination are well-known. Throughout his years in Congress, then-Congressman Ford was active in formulating, and voted for every major piece of legislation aimed at ending discrimination based on race, from the Civil Rights Bills of the 1950's; to the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965; and extensions and strengthening of these and other Acts through the 1970's. In August, 1974, President Ford signed legislation amending the Voting Rights Act of 1965, extending the temporary provisions of the Act for seven years and expanding coverage of the Act to language-minority citizens.

George H.W. Bush and Foreign Affairs

It was in the area of foreign affairs that George Bush was most comfortable and most effective. His career up to the time of his election as president had allowed him to cultivate relationships with heads of state the world over. As commander-in-chief, Bush orchestrated military operations in Panama, Somalia, and most notably in the Persian Gulf. Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm found Bush successfully marshaling an international coalition against Iraq. Elsewhere, it was on Bush's watch that the Soviet Union collapsed along with its satellite countries. In the aftermath, the Bush administration struggled to define what he had proclaimed to be a New World Order.

Part 1: The Moscow Summit and the Dissolution of the USSR

When George H. W. Bush became President in 1989, the United States had already begun to see a thawing of relations with the Soviet Union. President Bush spoke of softening relations in his inaugural address, claiming that "a new breeze is blowing," and adding that "great nations of the world are moving toward democracy through the door to freedom." This collection provides an in-depth analysis of the events leading up to the dissolution of the USSR and its implications for U.S.-Soviet relations.

This collection consists of two FOIA files from the Bush Library. The first file contains material related to the Moscow Summit and the August 19-22, 1991 Coup against Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. During the summit, President Bush met with President Gorbachev in Moscow and later visited Kiev. These materials include the planning documents and briefing books related to the Summit. The Coup attempt against Gorbachev began on the morning of the August 19 while he was on vacation, and ended upon his return to Moscow on August 22. This part of the collection contains cables sent to the White House Situation Room concerning day-by-day developments, and conversations between President Bush and other foreign leaders.

The second file contains material related to the dissolution of the Soviet Union. On December 21, 1991, following years of reform and upheaval behind the Iron Curtain, eleven Soviet republics joined together to form the Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS). Four days later, Mikhail Gorbachev resigned as president of the Soviet Union, and on 26 December 1991, the Soviet Union formally ceased to exist. This part of the collection highlights the Bush administration's response to the breakup of the Soviet Union and the formation of the CIS. Documents specifically address issues concerning economic and humanitarian support, diplomatic recognition of the republics, aiding the transition to democratic governments and market economies, and defense issues, particularly the fate and control over the former Soviet Union's vast nuclear arsenal. These documents include suggestions from the public, consultations with Congress, and discussions among federal agencies to formulate American policy concerning the unfolding events in the

Part 2: Bosnia and the Situation in the Former Yugoslavia

This collection consists of materials related to the former Yugoslavia, particularly Bosnia, and presidential decision-making. This collection provides researchers with the opportunity to develop a comprehensive picture of the many issues and the impacts of U.S. policy on the newly-created republics. Issues addressed include diplomatic recognition, humanitarian relief, military intervention, and international negotiations. Documentation consists of cables, NSC materials, press releases, press summaries, news items, and letters from Congress. The press releases originated with such organizations as the White House Press Office, the UN, and AmeriCares (a charitable organization). Many of the press summaries were faxed to the White House by the Republic of Serbia's Ministry of Information. Letters from members of Congress generally urge action of one kind or another in the Balkans and often include supporting material such as newspaper articles or reports. Most responses to Congress are form letters created by the Administration.

Part 3: Fall of the Berlin Wall and the Reunification of Germany

When East Germany opened its borders and Germans tore down the Berlin Wall separating East and West Berlin in early November 1989, it marked a symbolic end to Communist rule in Eastern Europe. In the minds of many, the Cold War was over. Bush offered a muted response at a press conference on November 9. In retrospect, many people recognized that by refusing to gloat or declare victory over the Soviet Union, Bush probably helped avoid a backlash by hardliners in Eastern Europe. This collection provides an in-depth analysis of the events leading up to the fall of the Berlin Wall and its implications for U.S.-German relations. This collection contains correspondence and telephone conversations between President Bush and German Chancellor Helmut Kohl concerning the fall of the Berlin wall and the reunification of Germany. Most of the material consists of Memoranda of Telephone Conversations between the President and Chancellor Kohl which took place between March 1989 and July 1990.

Part 4: The Middle East Peace Conference in Madrid, Spain

This collection contains materials related to the planning and organization of the October 1991 Middle East Peace Conference in Madrid, Spain. This collection primarily contains correspondence, memoranda, cables, diplomatic dispatches, reports, studies, maps, and printed material which document all aspects of staging the conference as well as the conference itself. These materials provide detailed information about the role of the United States in convening the peace conference, the interactions of Middle Eastern nations, and the role of European nations in the peace process. In addition, these materials reveal the highly complex nature of the negotiations leading up to and during the peace conference and highlight the positions of the various parties involved. The correspondence in particular documents the exchanges among heads of state throughout the negotiations, whereas memoranda, cables, and dispatches reveal the world of the professional negotiators and diplomats involved in the process. Also, these materials provide insight into the attitudes and opinions of interest groups as they promoted particular ideas and proposals regarding the Middle East. All these materials shed light on the constantly evolving Middle East peace process.

The George W. Ball Papers

This collection documents the private and public life of American lawyer and diplomat George W. Ball. Ball served as counsel in the Lend-Lease Administration and the Foreign Economic Administration from 1942 to 1944. In 1961, he became Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs. Ball then served as Under Secretary of State from 1961 to 1966 under both Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. His tenure as Under Secretary of State is most noted for his opposition to the Vietnam War.

Gerald R. Ford and Foreign Affairs

Part 1: National Security Adviser's Files

Section 2: Presidential Correspondence and Conversations with Foreign Leaders

This microfilm publication consists of two subseries of the National Security Advisers Files: Presidential Correspondence with Foreign Leaders, 1974-1977, and Memoranda of Conversations, 1973-1977.

The Presidential Correspondence with Foreign Leaders, 1974-1977 consists of a mix of routine and substantive letters and telegrams exchanged between President Ford and leaders of sixty-four countries. Substantive exchanges address such topics as Angola, the British financial crisis, economic summit meetings, Middle East peace process, OPEC, Cyprus, South Vietnam, NATO, and Soviet influence in Africa and Asia. Supporting materials, including memoranda, notes, and letter drafts, round out the collection. The collection consists primarily of letters, many of them originals, sent by foreign leaders to President Ford and copies of letters and messages sent by President Ford to foreign leaders. Many folders contain supporting materials used in drafting President Ford's letters and telegrams.

The Memoranda of Conversations, 1973-1977 consists of transcript-like records, and the notes from which they were prepared, of President Nixon's and President Ford's conversations with heads of state and foreign officials, senior intelligence and national security officials, American ambassadors, Cabinet members, members of Congress, and other distinguished foreign and American visitors. The memoranda of conversations (memcons) cover a wide variety of foreign affairs and national security topics, including the Middle East peace process, East-West relations, NATO and Europe, normalization of relations with the People's Republic of China, Angola, foreign aid, arms control, energy, foreign economic affairs, investigations of the intelligence community, and more.

JFK and Foreign Affairs

Part 1: National Security Files

President Kennedy took office in a time of rising international tension. The struggle of hundreds of new nations to break from their colonial past and establish modern institutions set loose chaos across much of the globe. The rhetoric and actions of the erratic Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev suggested a new Communist boldness, even recklessness, and a determination to exploit the prevailing instability. The development of new weapons systems added an especially frightful dimension. The fate of the world thus seemed to hang in the balance, and Kennedy assumed power certain that the survival of the United States depended upon its ability to defend "free" institutions. These new National Security File collections provide insights into President Kennedy's views on foreign affairs, U.S. leadership of the "West," and various worldwide crises. There are more than just documents on the Bay of Pigs, Berlin, and Cuba. These files highlight American efforts to support Third World countries, balance of payments and foreign trade, Alliance for Progress and relations with Latin America, nuclear weapons and testing, NATO and the Multilateral Force in Europe, Southeast Asia and regional security, foreign aid and military assistance, and the international space race.

Jimmy Carter and Foreign Affairs 1977-1981

Section 1: Foreign Affairs Subject Series

Jimmy Carter aspired to make Government "competent and compassionate," responsive to the American people and their expectations. His achievements were notable, but in an era of rising energy costs, mounting inflation, and continuing international tensions, it was impossible for his administration to meet these high expectations.

This new collection provides unique, and never published, documents on the major international issues during the Carter administration, including: Camp David Accords; NATO and the Rapid Deployment Force; Human Rights; relations with the People's Republic of China; Panama Canal Treaty; Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT II); covert intervention in Afghanistan following the Soviet invasion; and the Iran Hostage Crisis.

Documents include presidential correspondence and memoranda with his cabinet, Executive branch departments and agencies, prominent public figures, and foreign heads of state; cables and telegrams, between American foreign missions and the State Department; briefing books for international conferences; and texts of treaties and international law.

LBJ and Foreign Affairs

Part 1: White House Central Files

These excerpts from President Johnson's remarks at the Associated Press luncheon in New York City, on April 20, 1964, provide insight into his views on the importance of foreign affairs and the role of America in world affairs.

LBJ and Foreign Affairs provides in-depth research materials on President Johnson's handling of events in Latin America, the Middle East, Europe, and Asia, particularly in Vietnam. In Panama, dissatisfaction with the existing Panama Canal treaty led to rioting in 1964 and the temporary breaking of diplomatic relations with the United States. Relations with Panama were improved by Johnson's agreement to begin negotiations on a new treaty. Reports of Communist influence in a rebel movement in the Dominican Republic prompted the president to send troops to that country in 1965. The troops were withdrawn after a peaceful election the following year. In the Middle East the situation remained tense following the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Johnson's most controversial decision was to increase the number of U.S. troops in South Vietnam and to bomb sites in North Vietnam. The Vietnam War became the most crucial issue facing the president. Johnson frequently found himself attacked by both "doves," who were opposed to the war, and by "hawks," who supported the war but criticized his handling of it. By 1968, the United States had 548,000 troops in Vietnam and had already lost 30,000 Americans there. Johnson's approval ratings had dropped from 70 percent in mid-1965 to below 40 percent by 1967, and with it, his mastery of Congress. "I can't get out; I can't finish it with what I have got. So what the hell do I do?" he lamented to Lady Bird. Johnson never did figure out the answer to that question.

The Nixon Administration and Foreign Affairs

Section 1: Foreign Affairs Subject File

This collection focuses on the formulation of major foreign policy initiatives, implementation of policy decisions, and significant diplomatic activity. It examines in detail the foreign policy process and the intellectual assumptions--primarily realism--that U.S. foreign affairs leaders used to make sense of the world and to frame their basic policies.

This collection takes the entire foreign policy record of the Nixon administration as its canvas, and highlights the concepts of linkage and triangular diplomacy that they employed to achieve détente, Vietnamization, and other foreign policy objectives. It reveals the principals' concerns about American credibility, multi-polarity, and the strains on U.S. power, while tracing the development of such ideas as the Nixon Doctrine to meet those perceived challenges. In addition, there are documents devoted to the management of the State Department, the organization of foreign economic policy, and the Nixon administration's conflict with Congress over war powers legislation.

Studies in Global Crises

The Global Financial and Economic Crisis

This new microfilm publication, The Global Financial and Economic Crisis, delivers the full story leading to the current global economic and financial crisis—highlighting corporate finance, joint ventures and M&A, country profiles, capital markets, investor relations, currencies, banking, risk management, direct investment, money management and all the rest—specifically tailored for faculty and students around the world.

This series provides students with a multi-disciplinary, policy-focused examination of the global economy with essential reports, analyses, and working papers focusing on the complex changes in the global economy, including the emerging patterns of financial, trade, and human capital flows and their effect on national economies; the effect of globalization on state capacity, policy autonomy, and national economic conditions; the relationship between economic, political, and social outcomes; corporate governance and competition; and the interaction of interest groups, states, and multilateral agreement and organizations.

Global Finance and Economics aims to deepen understanding of international economic and financial issues, to explore the international repercussions of decisions taken in the public and private sectors, and to examine the choices made by policymakers.

The Global War on Terrorism

When there can be little margin of error concerning the facts and recommendations on complex and volatile issues, key government officials and federal executive departments depend upon an elite group of private and governmental “think tanks,” military service schools, and private contractors to deliver the research studies and analyses that help mold U.S. policy.

The documents in this collection are diverse in scope and emphasis. They dissect specific global crises—explore the historic and contemporary causes, illuminate the psychology behind the crisis, trace its origins, and address the formidable problem of developing feasible policies to alleviate the crisis.

The value of these materials is both immediate and historical. They provide up-to-date information, while documenting the manner in which various crises have been perceived and addressed over the last decade. These seminal studies are important now and will remain of value in the future.

Primary Source Media's new microfilm collection documents the U.S. response to the threat posed by international terrorism and the ongoing global conflict to eradicate terrorism. The research behind the studies, reports, and analyses represents an exhaustive review of the facts, causes, and political and military implications of a phenomenon that threatens every region of the world.

The Global War on Terrorism assembles research studies that analyze the goals and strategies of global terrorism. Theses studies, reports, and analyses were conducted by governmental agencies, and private organizations under contract with the Federal government. They represent the most rigorous and authoritative research on the global war on international and domestic terrorism.

The documents are diverse in scope and emphasis. They dissect specific terrorist events, explore the goals beyond the violence, illuminate the psychology of terrorism, trace the origins and development of terrorist movements, particularly

The International HIV/AIDS Crisis

Primary Source Media's new microfilm series documents the U.S. and worldwide response to the threat posed by HIV/AIDS. The research behind the studies, reports, and analyses represents an exhaustive review of the facts, causes, and political, social, and economic implications of a phenomenon that threatens every region of the world.

The International HIV/AIDS Crisis assembles research studies that analyze the goals and strategies of fighting this worldwide epidemic. Theses studies, reports, and analyses were conducted by governmental agencies, private organizations under contract with the Federal government, and international organizations—including the Centers for Disease Control; World Health Organization; U.S. Agency for International Development; Johns Hopkins University; Macro, International; and National Institutes of Health. They represent the most rigorous and authoritative research on HIV/AIDS. The value of these materials is both immediate and historical. They provide up-to-date information on the global crisis, while documenting the manner in which HIV/AIDS has spread, efforts to control the epidemic, and its treatment methodology over more than two decades. These seminal studies are important now and will remain of value in the future.

Twentieth Century American Politics and Diplomacy

Series 1: The Walter Lippmann Papers Filmed from Yale University.

This collection comprises the papers of journalist, public policy analyst, and political philosopher Walter Lippmann, who observed and covered some of the most important events of the 20th century, including World Wars I & II, the Nuremberg Trial, and the International War Tribunals. As one of the nation's most influential journalists, he corresponded with prominent writers, scholars and politicians as well as his day-to-day readers, whose thoughts and feelings about the matters of the day are reflected in the public opinion mail that he so assiduously retained. This collection comprises four sections of Lippmann's correspondence, public opinion mail, and diaries.

Series 3: Papers of Alger Hiss

Part 1: Alger Hiss Defense Files From the Hiss Defense Files collection at Harvard Law School.

On August 2, 1948, Whittaker Chambers, a confessed former Communist, appeared before the House Committee on Un-American Activities (HUAC) and accused Alger Hiss, a former Roosevelt era State Department official, of being a Communist and a spy for the Soviet Union. Hiss denied both allegations. Chambers' allegation and Hiss's denial set the stage for what has since become known as the "Hiss-Chambers controversy." This controversy was a catalytic event change the face of post-World War II American politics and for over five decades has generated heated scholarly debate. The Alger Hiss Defense Files contain the Defense Files and the Subject Files of the Hiss Defense Files collection at Harvard Law School. The Alger Hiss Defense Files features correspondence, notes, reports, interviews, memos, and investigative work that went into the Hiss defense team's preparation and strategy, all of which provide a much fuller picture of the case than is available anywhere else. Included are personal and name files that relate to Hiss, his family, friends, work associates, and accusers, supporters and witnesses, as well as members of his legal defense.

Part 2: Alger Hiss Papers from the Tamiment Library collections, New York University from the Tamiment Library collections, New York University

This collection is a compilation of material selected from four archival collections: the Hiss

Family Papers, the John Lowenthal papers, the Agnese Nelms Haury Papers and the William A Reuben Papers. Each series reproduced has been filmed in its entirety and consists of incoming and outgoing correspondence of Alger Hiss and members of the Hiss family, interview transcripts, legal documents, and memorabilia, as well as non-Hiss correspondence and research material which sheds light on Hiss's life and later efforts to reopen and re-examine the Hiss Case. The individual collections that comprise the Alger Hiss Papers at the Tamiment Library complement Harvard Law Library's Alger Hiss Defense Collection.

Western Aid and the Global Economy

Series 1: The Save the Children Fund Archive, London

The Fund began as a European aid agency setting up orphanages and refugee camps for displaced families in 1919, with a special emphasis on Austria and Greece, and significant overlaps with both early Peace and Women's movements. When the Fund turned in 1922 to the Russian Famine, saving an estimated one million children's lives, the organization took on a global role, witnessed especially by the huge political impact of the Declaration of the Rights of the Child arising from the Geneva Conference of 1923. From this date onwards, the archive consists more of what we would recognize today as "field reports" from the various projects — vivid narrative accounts of the conditions and challenges in the field.
